ESCANABA, MICHIGAN

The scope of the "free textbook" decision by the Michigan Supresse Court became clearer this when the State Dept. of Education issued "guidelines" to local school districts based on an applican by the Assistant Attorney General for Education.

It's going to be espensive for the taxpayer. Nobody's quite sure how expensive, but Dr. John Porter, acting superintendent of public in-struction, said the tab sent to the Legislature this fall could be as high as $100 million. "We'll add the districts to estimate their costs, then however high it is - we'll send it to the Legisleture, with whatever bonus for not paying the bill that that action portends," said another Edueation Dept. spokesman.

First estimates when the court issued its ruling in the suit against the Ann Arbor Board of Mucation were that the cost would be in the $10 to $20 million range. "Obviously those are low," said the department spokesman.

The guidelines provide that no general or gistration fees be charged and that no charges will be allowed for any course — required or elective — for which quedit is given toward a high school digitatio. Builder textbooks, reheals must provide pencils, paper, crayons, band instruments and weekly readers if required for chastreon nos. There also cannot be any sharges for such things as towels, shop militrials, draft-ber supplies, home commiss material, work-

Not all school districts will be affected to positive degree by the court decision and guide-se as not all districts have levied fees on their state. But most districts in the state will have the additional costs to shoot. Textbooks may be bleen free, but how many school systems well? POVERED purier and penells for their students?

Soviet Farm Incentives

For 50 years the Communist leaders have uplied collectivist-Marxist theories to Soviet desculture and still have not yet come up with a way of producing sufficient food to feed the Rusin people.

Ironically, Lenin's most alluring alogan for ironically, Lenin's most alluring alogan for ironical to "neace, land Russian peasants was his promise to "peace, land and bread." He delivered on the first by surrendering large sections of Western Russia to the Germans in Weste War I. The other two promises have never been delivered. Land was only temporately turned over to the farmers and there has never been enough bread, if by that is meant purper feed for a well-rounded diet. True to Majurist axioms, the Communists nationalized agriculture, killed off the prosperous and best peacent farmers (kulaks) and herded the rest into gigantic state farms.

Sinks beught treaters from Henry Ford and even get the American automotive genius to build a medera plant in the Soviet Union to turn out Russian tractors. The dictator thought that mechanization would solve the food-production problem but it didn't. Incentive was still lacking.

problem but it didn't. Incentive was still lacking. Even today Russia frequently has to import wheat when, under the czars, the Ukraine was the granary of Europe.

Obviously taking into consideration the fact that individual incentive is outproducing collectixised farming, the Soviet regime has now had to make further concessions to the peasant on his private plot. It has announced higher prices for farm produce and bonuses for premium production on state farms. The peacent wins two ways: He earns more from his labor on the collective and on his private plot by hiking produc-

The next thing you know the Soviet government will get out of farming altogether and allow the free market system to take over. Then the argricultural system in Russia would be even more capitalistic than in the U.S.

School Rules

The scope of the "free textbook" decision by the Michigan Supreme Court became clearer this week when the State Dept. of Education issued "guidelines" to local school districts based on an opinion by the Assistant Attorney General for

It's going to be expensive for the taxpayer. Nobody's quite sure how expensive, but Dr. John Porter, acting superintendent of public instruction, said the tab sent to the Legislature this fall could be as high as $100 million. "We'll ask the districts to estimate their costs, then however high it is - we'll send it to the Legislature, with whatever bonus for not paying the bill that that action portends," said another Education Dept. spokesman.

First estimates when the court issued its ruling in the suit against the Ann Arbor Board of Education were that the cost would be in the $10 to $20 million range. "Obviously those are low,' said the department spokesman.

The guidelines provide that no general or registration fees be charged and that no charges will be allowed for any course - required or elective - for which credit is given toward a high school diploma. Besides textbooks, schools must provide pencils, paper, crayons, band instruments and weekly readers if required for classroom use. There also cannot be any charges for such things as towels, shop materials, drafting supplies, home economics material, work-

Charges will be permitted for extra-curricular activities, but "provision should be made on a reasonable basis so that students without financial means are not excluded," the guidelines assert.

Not all school districts will be affected to the same degree by the court decision and guidelines as not all districts have levied fees on their students, but most districts in the state will have some additional costs to absorb. Textbooks may have been free, but how many school systems provided paper and pencils for their students? How many districts did not make an extra charge for lumber used in a shop class or for drafting paper?

In ruling that textbook fees are unconstitutional in Michigan, the Supreme Court has decided that the responsibility of education should rest with all of the people of the state and not just with the parents of children in school. It is , ing prelude to providing imconsistent with other school financial arrange- proved cover for future offenments on both local and state levels - not just parents pay property taxes, or state sales taxes. for example — and recognizes that when parents have to pay for educating their children that not all children receive the same opportunity.

Hopefully, the Legislature will come up with the money to meet the additional costs to school districts which will have to go without fees they have been collecting in past years. At this point, there is no chance that local districts can go to the voters for more millage money.

Without the additional funds, districts may have no alternative to begin cutting back programs, particularly in those areas where special and costly supplies are needed.

And that, of course, was not the intent of the court action.

Soviet Farm Incentives

For 50 years the Communist leaders have applied collectivist-Marxist theories to Soviet agriculture and still have not yet come up with a way of producing sufficient food to feed the Russian people.

Ironically, Lenin's most alluring slogan for Russian peasants was his promise to "peace, land and bread." He delivered on the first by surrendering large sections of Western Russia to the Germans in World War I. The other two promises have never been delivered. Land was only temporarily turned over to the farmers and there has never been enough bread, if by that is meant proper food for a well-rounded diet. True to Marxist axioms, the Communists nationalized agriculture, killed off the prosperous and best peasant farmers (kulaks) and herded the rest into gigantic state farms.

Stalin bought tractors from Henry Ford and even got the American automotive genius to build a modern plant in the Soviet Union to turn out Russian tractors. The dictator thought that mechanization would solve the food-production problem but it didn't. Incentive was still lacking.

Even today Russia frequently has to import wheat when, under the czars, the Ukraine was the granary of Europe.

Obviously taking into consideration the fact that individual incentive is outproducing collectixized farming, the Soviet regime has now had to make further concessions to the peasant on his private plot. It has announced higher prices for farm produce and bonuses for premium production on state farms. The peasant wins two ways: He earns more from his labor on the collective and on his private plot by hiking produc-

The next thing you know the Soviet government will get out of farming altogether and allow the free market system to take over. Then the argricultural system in Russia would be even more capitalistic than in the U.S.

Peninsula Potpourri

The Beaver Lodge Trail in the Ottawa National Forest near Ontonagon is now completed and ready for use. The first group to take the walk included personnel from the forest supervisor's office in Ironwood. The trail is about one and a quarter miles long and covers a variety of terrain. The trial is covered with hemlock bark and can be used in any weather during the summer months.

A flying piece of metal penetrated the roof of the L. J. Paris home in Bessemer recently and pierced the floor of the second-floor bedroom, causing considerable damage. The projectile was a piece from the remains of the old Peterson mine shaft being dynamited. The metal two inches thick and 12 inches wide, struck the end of a bed, cut a big hole in the rug and put a dent in the floor. The living room ceiling below was cracked but not penetrated. Mrs. Paris found the room "a mess" when she returned home.

Russians Have Stake Suez Canal Route

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The cease-fire in the Middle East along the Suez Canal is obviously at the mercy of Egyptian and Soviet eager beavers who may be tempted to use the truce to strengthen the close-up Arab antiaircraft defenses in an agreement-breaksive action against Israel.

However, if Washington is firm about exacting compliance with the cease-fire terms, the chances are that the Soviets will behave.

It is not that the Communists have any particular honor about observing international commitments. But the Moscow imperialists - and they remain just that—have certain fish to fry, and the continued blockage of the Suez Canal does not consort with the Number One Soviet priority, which is to prepare for a possibly mortal struggle with the Red Chinese.

Any war between the two Communist giants would put an intense strain on Soviet land transportation in Siberia, particularly between Lake Baikal and the Pacific. This means that sea transportation is a particularly important consideration to the Russians, even as it was in the time of their disastrous war with Japan early in the century. If the Soviets are to insure themselves possession of Manchuria, which Kremlinoligist Stefan Possony of Stanford University has told a Congressional committee would be the primary aim of any Far Eastern war, the Suez Canal must be put in working order.

* * * It was a surprisingly superfor Japanese sea power that beat the Russians in that faroff battle of Tsushima Strait in 1905, a battle which Theodore Roosevelt likened to Trafalgar in importance. 1. Two spades. First, let's consider the meaning of North's spade bid. Generally, an overcall in the one level indicates a good suit at least five cards in length and less in all-around values than an opening bid would indicate. It is primarily a competitive bid aimed more at achieving a part score than a game. (There are exceptions, of course.)

Partner of the overcaller reacts accordingly, bearing in mind that the overcall is not the equivalent of an opening bid and, in fact, that it may be based on as few as 8 or 10 highcard points. That is why you simply raise one spade to two. It would be wrong to bid two hearts, which might be passed and prove to be the wrong con-

2. Three notrump. Game is highly likely, and the best way of getting there is by the direct route. Whatever the nature of North's overcall, you have a hand that is bound to fit it, so far as making game is concerned. North may go on to four spades, if his hand is unsiutable for notrump, but that should not prove to be a difficut chore. A jump to two notrump would not be forcing. Nor would there be much point to bidding the diamonds with a hand so suitable for notrump.

3. Four spades. Whatever values North may have for his overcall, you should want to be in game. It is hard to imagine hand where he would lose four tricks. With a hand of this magnitude you shouldn't merely invite partner to bid a game by raising him to three spades. You have to bid 'em right up.

4. Four notrump. Despite West's opening bid, there is a many high-eard points Northor even West-has is not frightfully important, but how many aces North has is. To make certain of the ace situation you use Blackwood.

If North responds five diamonds, showing one ace, you should bid six spades. You must be willing to assume that there are no spade or diamond losers. North's hand may be as poor and even this sad collection would probably produce twelve

Members Of UAW Getting Restless Over Auto Talks

DETROIT (AP)-Some rankand-file members of the United Auto Workers Union are beginning to express displeasure over the slow pace so far of auto contract negotiations.

In a petiltion sent to UAW President Leonard Woodcock, 24 members of a white-collar local at Chrysler Corp. complained that union bargainers have wasted negotialting time by discussing such "frivolous" issues as pollution.

Contracts between the UAW and the Big Three automakers expire Sept. 14. Serious brasstacks bargaining is not expected to begin until after the companies make their initial offer. and that is not expected for at least a week.

A group of rank-and-file members from Michigan and Ohio locals met Thursday in suburban Warren to express gripes about the lack of progress, and the failure of union leaders to pinpoint what they mean by their demand for a "substantial" wage increase.

"We think it should be spelled out and we think we should know what it is," said Gerald Brody of Local 160. "The government says a family of four needs $10,700 to get by, and that's what we want."

Ann Landers

Death Of Doctor's Wife Shocks Friend

Dear Ann Landers: I buried my best friend today. She was only 36, a beautiful delightful woman - a devoted wife and the mother of four children. This woman did not have to die so young. For the life of me I cannot understand it. And the whole tragedy seems so unreal when one considers she was the wife of a physician.

The cause of her death was cancer. She admitted when she went to her doctor that she noticed the lump in her breast a few months after her last annual check-up.

She confided in me when I visited her in the hospital (following the removal of her breast) that she didn't want to "bother" her husband with it because he had too much on his mind. How an intelligent woman could have waited eight or nine months to investigate a lump in her breast is more than I can understand.

Please, Ann Landers, do the women of the world a favor. Your column is the best read thing in the paper. Please, I beg fo you, print this letter. Tell every woman out there if she notices a lump in her breast to go immediately to the doctor and let him determine whether or not it is serious. Ninety-five per cent of the breast lumps are nothing more than enlarged glands or cysts. The painful lumps are rarely malignant tumors, but a woman should never ignore a breast lump. Early detection of even a canserous tumor can mean a life saved. Thank you, Ann, and God bless you for the good you do. - Hearibroken Friend

Dear Friend: Thank you for your letter. Somewhere, someone who reads it will now go to the phone and make an appointment with her doctor. That woman may live another 20 years because she read your letter. Thanks again.

Dear Ann Landers: I travel Illinois and Indiana for a nationally known firm. I get to Peoria frequently. Over the last year I developed a close relationship with the ex-wife of a former executive. Please understand, this was no romance, merely a friendship.

A few weeks ago I received for my birthday a framed picture of this woman. The accompanying note said: "For your desk." The picture was inscribed, "To a man who has been an angel to me ..." The woman has friends in this office and I'm afraid if I don't put her picture on my desk she'll hear about it and her feelings will be hurt. In the meantime I already

That a host of people are doing their traveling before the advanced passenger rates go into effect is evidenced by every incoming and outgoing train at the Escanaba station. For the past two weeks passenger traffic has been heavier than ever before during the month of August and the increased traffic is attributed to the desire of the people to complete contemplated trips before passenger rates will be advanced 20 per cent.

Grid Coaches Warned About Heat Hazards

CHICAGO - High school and mer and early fall training ses-

Coaches should schedule training sessions to allow the players to acclimate themselves to the heat, the Committee on the Medical Aspects of Sports of the American Medical Association, the National Federation of State High School Associations, and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said in a joint statement.

Deaths from heat illness have occurred each football season in recent years despite such warnings from medical and athletic organizations. Most such deaths are preventable, the three groups said in their joint statement.

Heat fatigue and heat exhaustion, caused by depletion kee 32; 3 tied with 28. of salt and water due to excessive sweating, and heat stroke, caused by a breakdown of the sweating mechanism, are pregram of football players.

Schedule workouts during the cooler morning and early evening hours and allow rest periods of 15 to 30 minutes during workouts of an hour or more.

Limit the first week of practice to conditioning activities. Supply white shorts and Tshirts, football shoes and mouth protectors as the recommended apparel.

Furnish extra salt and water in recommended amounts during hot weather. Watch athletes carefully for signs of trouble, particularly interior linemen and determined athletes who may not report discomfort.

Remember, the humidity and temperature and not the sun are the most important factors in heat illness. Ban the use of rubberized ap-
